HEAT AFFECTS MILITIAMEN

The Blazing Sunshine and Desert Plays Havoc With Troops--Many Are Prostrated

(Special to The Herald)
El Paso, July 2.—Blazing sunshine and blistering desert has played havoc with some of the newly arrived militiamen who are not yet seasoned to campaigning. There has been more than a score of heat prostrations and some of the hospital outfits have been kept busy administering to the guardsmen who have collapsed under the heat and fatigue.

The latest survivor of the Carrizal fight to be found is Corporal Cooke of K-troop, Tenth Cavalry, who was brought to Juarez from Villa Ahumada by Carranza troops. It was expected that he would be turned over to the United States military authorities today.

STRUCK BY MOTORCYCLE

George Howard of Hampton Dying at Newburyport Hospital.

George Howard of Hampton is dying at the Anna Jacques hospital, Newburyport, and Albert Gessing and Frederick Redmond of North Andover were severely injured as the result of a motorcycle crash early on Sunday morning.

Gessing and Redmond were on the motorcycle riding toward Salisbury Beach along Pond Hill, when Howard stepped from a street car directly into their path.

VISITING YACHTS PUT IN HERE

Several yachts from outside clubs were tied up at the float of the Portsmouth Yacht club on Sunday, among which were the Harold, of Dorchester; Vestra, of Dorchester; Little of Sacon; Olga, of Lynn; and Mermaid of West Lynn.

Many of the visiting fleet remained over night to avoid the storm.

DIED IN BOSTON

John Kirk, Former Engineer for P. E. Ry., Passed Away on Sunday.

Word was received in this city today announcing the death of a former resident, John Kirk, who died at his home on White street in East Boston on Sunday. Mr. Kirk was for several years a chief engineer in the power plant of the Portsmouth Electric railway at Nahant Island and left here a few years ago to accept a position with the City of Boston as engineer.

There will be an amusement for all on the Fourth.

ONE MARINE WAS KILLED

In Battle at San Domingo, Between U. S. Forces and Revolutionists.

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, July 2.—Private Klom Mills of Denver, Col., of the 21st Company of Marines, was killed in a battle with revolutionists near Monte Christo, Santo Domingo, the Navy Department was officially informed today. In another battle near Puerto Plata, Sgt. Fernando Barrios was severely wounded and Lieut. B. D. B. Roben and Trumpeter Julius Goldsmith were slightly wounded. Col. Joseph H. Pendleton, commander of American Marines at Monte Christo, today reported that on Saturday a body of Marines encountered 100 revolutionists while advancing toward Santiago and in a battle that resulted Private Mills was killed. The revolutionists were dispersed.

MRS. HETTIE GREEN DEAD

Was the World's Richest Woman; Has Been Ill for Some Time.

(Special to The Herald)
New York, July 2.—Mrs. Hettie Green, aged 61, the richest woman in the world, died at her home here today. She has been in ill health for some time. It was reported that she had suffered a paralytic shock, but this was denied by her son who stated that his mother was suffering from ailments incident to old age. For months her physical condition has been such that she could not give her personal attention to her vast fortune, but in the meantime her affairs were administered by her son.

WILL CALL NO MORE.

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, July 2.—No new National Guard units will be called out at the present time, according to a statement by the War Department today.

Manchester has another candidate for Congress.

TO HEAR MANY FINE ORATORS

Wilson, Roosevelt, Hughes, Bryan, Clark and Taft Will Visit Maine During Campaign

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, July 3.—A political 3-ring circus is to be shown in the quiet old state of Maine within the next two months according to plans made by Republican and Democratic leaders in Washington. Both parties are determined upon a vigorous fight to win the "by-election" at which Maine elects state officials and members of congress on Sept. 11. They believe that the result will forecast to some degree, the presidential result in November. Also they expect that the winning of the Maine fight will have some "moral effect" on the voters throughout the country.

Among the performers who are being approached by the rival managers of the Republican and Democratic ends of the Maine show are the "headliners" of both parties, The Democrats are after President Wilson, Champ Clark, William Jennings Bryan and any number of smaller fry. The Republicans will oppose this galaxy of stars with Charles E. Hughes, Col. Theodore Roosevelt and possibly ex-President William Howard Taft. Altogether Maine appears to have a fine chance to hear some of the best campaign oratory of recent years before the vote is taken.

PERSHING MOVES HIS TROOPS

Now Has a Fighting Force That Can Withstand Any Mexican Army That May Confront It

(Special to The Herald)
Washington, July 2.—There is no change in the administration's policy regarding Mexico, Secretary of State Lansing said today. Reiterating that statement, the State and War Departments today refused to assume responsibility for the action of Gen. John J. Pershing, commanding the punitive expedition now in Mexico, in moving his various troops until today. There are now further south than 100 miles of the international boundary.

Pershing acted upon his own initiative, army officers pointed out today, that this was necessary if his column was not to be utterly vulnerable by concentrating. Pershing today has a fighting force that can hold itself against any force the Mexicans could throw against it. In addition he has withdrawn his men from the arid sections where they could not get even ordinary forage for their horses, this being the dry season, and has reduced the risk of having his communications cut, and his transport trains attacked, to a minimum.

While the officials argued that the expedition would be maintained unchanged, the War Department took steps today which indicated that hereafter the American side of the boundary is to be patrolled in such a way that further raids will be out of the question. Heretofore Gen. Funston has been seriously hampered by the enormous stretch of territory he has had to command. This has been divided, although the order doing so may not be made immediately effective. Gen. Funston hereafter will be in charge of the southern departments south of El Paso. From El Paso to a point some 30 miles east of Douglas, Ariz., will be created the Department of New Mexico, of which Gen. Pershing is to have command. It is especially stated that although Gen. Pershing's official headquarters are to be in El Paso, he will stay where he is at present. West of the 109th meridian is created the Western Department and Maj. Gen. Bell will command it with headquarters at Douglas, Ariz.

The fact that Gen. Pershing, a brigadier, is given a command equal to that of Funston and Bell, major generals, is accepted here as indicating the former's promotion to that rank in the near future.

WILL COME TO PORTSMOUTH

Nineteenth Annual Convention of State Firemen to be Held Sept. 27-28-- Nearly 2000 Men Expected

Portsmouth gets the nineteenth annual convention of the New Hampshire State Firemen's Association to be held on Sept. 27-28. This was decided on Saturday and today Chief Engineer W. P. Woods of the local fire department who is president of the State Association notified Secretary Stone of Manchester that Portsmouth would do the trick again in 1916.

The successful convention and the excellent entertainment given the firemen of the state in 1915 was the means of getting them to return to Portsmouth in 1916.

Every member of the executive board was in favor of this city. This year the affair promises to eclipse all the previous state gatherings and it is expected that 1500 or 1600 visiting firemen will be here the second day when the big parade is held.

Chief Woods has called a meeting of the several companies of the Portsmouth department tonight and the matter of financing the affair will be discussed and committees appointed to perfect the necessary arrangements.

In regard to the expense, the merchants have notified Chief Woods that they will help out on the subscription. Last year the men of the department did not make any outside appeal and covered the expense themselves by an assessment. This year they will not be required to raise the amount of money necessary to finance the convention. This will be decided at the meeting tonight. The association allows $300 and the rest must come from other sources.

NOW FULLY RECRUITED

N. H. National Guard Ex- pected to Leave for Bor- der Wednesday.

(Special to The Herald)
Concord, July 3.—The N. H. National Guard is now recruited up to nearly maintaining strength, forty more recruits being needed today to reach that standard. The type of recruits answering the urgent call for men is gratifying to the mustering officers. The new men are coming in from the small towns where no military organizations have been kept up and are of fine physique. Very few were unable to pass the physical examination during the past few days. The forty additional men needed will be under canvas by Tuesday and all preparations are being made to move the troops from this state on Wednesday. The Battery and Cavalry branches are above minimum war strength and are ready to start at any time. The Field hospital and Signal corps are nearly up to the required strength. The health of the regiment is excellent.

LIQUOR INSPECTORS BUSY ABOUT CONCORD

Watching For Any Violation in Selling to Minors.

The presence of the state troops in Concord has kept the liquor inspectors of the state excise board busy. The full force has been assigned to Concord since the regiment was ordered in camp there. This was done to prevent if possible, any sale of liquor to soldiers under age, but the inspectors found no violation of the rule.

MORE CASES OF PARALYSIS

(Special to The Herald)
New York, July 3.—Fifty-seven cases of infantile paralysis and eighteen additional deaths in the strange epidemic which is sweeping this community were reported today. Seventeen of the deaths were in Brooklyn.

FIELD DAY AT HAMPTON OF THE ROYAL ARCANUM

OUTING HELD ON SATURDAY BY ALPHA COUNCIL OF THIS CITY LARGELY ATTENDED

Alpha Council, Royal Arcanum of Portsmouth, held its annual field day at Hampton Beach on Saturday with a large attendance. The members of Major Waldron Council of Dover were special guests. Percy Hersey of Portsmouth was the individual star, winning the ball throw, 100-yard dash, running broad jump and hop, step and jump. The remainder of the sports resulted as follows:

Ball Throw for Women—Won by Mrs. Fred Harrison, Mrs. John Culver, second.

Three-legged race—Won by Delacell and Brown.

Pipe Contest—Won by Mrs. Fred Harrison.

The ball game was won by the single men. Bowling and dancing were also enjoyed. Arthur Hersey Jr., Fred Heiser and Joseph Serrell comprised the committee in charge.

How Canadian General Died in Third Ypres Battle

Toronto, July 2.—Toronto mourns Major-General Mafred Smith Mercer, former lawyer, sportsman and air commander of this city, who died in the firing line with the men of his Third Canadian Division in the Third battle of Ypres this month. The first authentic account of his death came in a postcard written from Germany by the General's aide-de-camp. It read:

"Was beside my beloved General when he was killed. Tell Fred Mercer his brother was first shot by a large shell and when I tried to get him away, but impossible, was shot through leg and broken, lay in field, no pain and next day killed by shrapnel instantly."

Later came official word that the body was recovered from a demolished dugout in the Armagh Wood and was buried in a military cemetery at Poperinghe. The General's staff traveled all night to attend.

It was known earlier that Mercer, a divisional commander, was inspecting first-line trenches when the German bombardment of June 2 began. Attack seemed imminent and the General refused to return to headquarters.

He was first injured in a front-line trench before the Germans carried 1500 yards of Canadian line. When the Third Division came back two days later they searched long for their lost leader's body.

Mercer was immensely popular from the day at Salisbury when he promised pull for every crack in his brigade had a good meal in three hours. Twenty years ago he became a private in the militia. He practiced law and never smelted powder until the present war.

So long as the Canadians held the Ypres salient under ordinary conditions of trench warfare the casualties are expected to run from 200 to 300 per day for the nearly 60,000 Canadians who met to position there.

An offensive by either side will mean enormously greater losses, on the marshy condition of the terrain makes the construction of really a strong defense impossible.

At present three Canadian divisions are before Ypres. A fourth division of 20,000 Canadians is now being organized in English training camps. One year ago when the Canadians fought the second battle of Ypres, only the first division was there. It endured losses of nearly seven thousand in one week.

In the third battle the Third Division bore the brunt and was helped out by the second division.

To make good all the losses the Canadian army has about 200,000 men training in Canada and approximately 60,000 to southwestern England. Canada has enlisted 350,000 men since the war began but the recruits in Canada still lack training. Caps made in the ranks by the recent fighting are being filled by the rushing of every available man from the English training camps.

SEVERAL PERSONS INJURED AFTER AUTO TURNS TURTLE

Dr. Michon of Manchester and Party of Five, Badly Shaken up Early Sunday Morning at Exeter

Dr. N. D. Michon of Manchester, together with his wife, and nephew Frank K. George were badly shaken up by an auto accident at Exeter early Sunday morning when their car, a six-cylinder Hudson, caught fire and turned turtle, throwing all five occupants to the road.

None are believed to have been seriously injured although one of the ladies in the party complained of suffering much pain in her chest and back. They were taken back to Manchester in another car.

Dr. Michon, who was driving, stated that his car caught fire and he lost control for a few moments from the excitement. He swerved sharply to the left and then attempted to regain the road again but the car skidded sideways, turned over and threw all five passengers to the road. Police Officer Dunbar of the Exeter department was near the scene at the time of the accident and called Dr. William H. Nute who rendered what aid was necessary, assisted by Dr. Michon. Another car from a garage was secured and all of the party were driven back to Manchester.

The car was lying up-side-down, square across the road and burned so badly as to be useless. Late in the afternoon a "trouble car" from Wetherill's Garage, Exeter, was sent to tow the remains to the garage. Nothing but the motor, radiator and front wheels remained undamaged. No details as to the nature of the injuries to the passengers could be secured late in the evening nor could the names of the passengers other than Dr. Michon and his wife, be learned.

ARMY MEDICAL MEN ARE READY TO FIGHT DISEASE

Washington, July 2.—With the arrival of the National Guard at the Mexican border, army officials have put into effect stringent disease-prevention measures to insure the health of Uncle Sam's fighters. The health of the army is so well guarded that the army medical corps officials are today confident that practically every man will be free from any ailments while on duty.

The medical department of the army has carried on a systematic course of training of the officers in service schools and has brought about education in hygiene among the line and medical officers of the National Guard in several states.

Since the Spanish War, all medical officers of the Regular Army have been given systematic instruction in hygiene and sanitation at the Army Medical School, with the result that in the mobilization camps in Texas the rate of inefficiency from diseases of troops in the field has been usually less than similar rates for troops in garrison.

Training of militia medical officers in hygiene and camp sanitation has also been part of the state courses of instruction and at the various maneuvers and camps in the past few years. These medical officers have had a chance to see and apply in practice the methods of disease prevention which they have learned in theory; the same being the case with respect to officers of the Medical Reserve Corps over 500 of whom were given instruction during the past week by correspondence from the Army Service School at Fort Leavenworth, together with a suggested course of reading.

The practical sanitation applied by Army Medical officers since the Spanish War in Cuba, Panama, and the Philippines, have set the standards for the world in respect to disease prevention.

In the application of these general measures to local camps and commands, the first step has been the appointment of a regular medical officer to have supervisory charge of sanitation.

tion and mustering in. As soon as these militia troops become United States Volunteers by being mustered in, a regular medical officer is formally assigned to them as sanitary inspector. Where large groups are together, field service regulations require that the medical officer detailed as sanitary inspector shall be experienced in such matters.

The first step in the prevention of disease in a camp is the issuance of an appropriate sanitary order. The degree in which such orders are obeyed is usually a fair index of the general state of discipline of the command.

With respect to typhoid fever, which was the great source of sickness in the camps of the Spanish War, this disease now gives relatively little concern as a result of the effective protective inoculations worked out by the Army Medical Department, and systematically carried out on all regular troops on enlistment.

While anti-typhoid inoculation has not been required of the militia, every effort has been made to bring it about in the past by voluntary suggestion to this procedure. As soon as Guardsmen are mustered into the service as United States Volunteers, they are given the full course of three guillotine inoculations extending over a period of twenty days.

The measure is effective that for nearly two years not a single case of typhoid fever developed. As a result of the rapid mustering in of the militia and their transfer to the border for immediate service, there may be a little delay in completing the twenty-day course of protective inoculation, and it is possible that a scattering case here and there may occur as a result of military necessity interfering with complete early protection.

One of the diseases which has given the armies of Europe great concern during the present war has been typhus fever. This disease is endemic in Mexico. It is transmitted by the house fly, and by the avoidance of these parasites, the disease will not occur.

Balanced Meals--

Have them both tasty and healthful.

Years ago a food was devised to serve two important functions—(1) furnish delicious flavor, and (2) well-balanced nourishment.

That food is

Grape-Nuts

It fulfills its office admirably, for it is made of whole wheat and malted barley, with all their splendid nutrition, including the vital mineral salts, which are lacking in much of the food of the usual dietary.

In thousands of homes Grape-Nuts forms part of the daily ration with both young and old.

"There's a Reason"

Some camps in the United States are in malarial zones. Malaria is transmitted by the mosquito. Each soldier is provided with a mosquito bar, and orders require that it shall be used. Should troops go to Mexico, malaria will probably have to be guarded against at most points below an elevation of 2500 feet. The above also applies to the transmission of yellow fever, and while this is supposed to be non-existent in Mexico, it is barely possible that foot may exist in a few small villages along the Mexican coast. While small pox is rare in the United States, it is common in Mexico, which has a very large primitive and unvaccinated population. Every soldier is vaccinated immediately on enlistment, and re-vaccinated as often as may be necessary to insure protection. Camp cleanliness is insisted upon in mobilization camps as part of the general camp sanitation. Soil pollution such as so often prevailed during the Spanish War should not occur in any camp with a commander of proper efficiency.

A special campaign against flies will be rigorously carried out in every camp.

MID-SUMMER OUTING OF PUBLISHERS

Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week will see the annual mid-summer outing of the New Hampshire Weekly Publishers' Association, which is to be held at the Hotel Wentworth. D. M. White, president; C. G. Jenness, secretary; B. C. Snyder, E. W. Townsend, and C. O. Barney, acting as the executive committee of the association, have arranged a delightful and interesting program for the publishers of the large number of weekly newspapers in the state.

Much of the business of the meeting will be accomplished as quickly as possible on Friday as to allow the members attending the outing an opportunity to enjoy the program.

The program includes automobile trips from the hotel to the various places of interest in and about the city; the navy yard, the forts, Isles of Shoals, Rye, Hampton and York beaches, and a special invitation has been extended the members to be the guests of Mr. Woodward in an inspection of the Frank Jones Brewing Company's plant.

A year ago the outing was held at Lancaster. In the "North Country" and proved one of the most enjoyable in the history of the association. The members of the executive committee in charge of the arrangements for this year have been working with the one object of giving the members a time equal if not better than the one held last year.

FOR PROMOTION OF RIFLE PRACTICE

Washington, D. C., July 1.—J. Hall, associate executive of the Olds Motor Works of Lansing, Michigan, and advocate of national automobile military preparedness has been invited by Fred H. Phillips, secretary of the National Rifle Association of America to co-operate in the promotion of civilian automobile rifle clubs throughout the U. S.

The war department's national board for the promotion of rifle practice, acting through the National Rifle Association has been fostering the formation of civil rifle clubs for some time. Government equipment, consisting of standard army rifles and ammunition has been furnished to this end.

To date 1200 clubs have been organized. Phillips states however that a serious difficulty in the road of further progress lies in the relative inaccessibility of rifle ranges to centers of population. Through the formation of automobile rifle clubs he believes this difficulty could be overcome.

Hall has expressed his willingness to become associated with the project and has pledged his support to this end. In addition there are approximately 1000 Oldsmobile dealers throughout the U. S., many of whom may be expected to follow the lead of their chief and act as nuclei for any organization plan that may be evolved.

Correspondence to establish a definite method of organization is now in progress and it is hoped to be able to make an announcement shortly. Meanwhile Hall is preparing for a business trip through the larger Oldsmobile distributing centers during which he will investigate the local aspects of the problem.

In its eventual outcome, the enterprise promises to be of benefit to the preparedness of this country in two ways:—First it will provide for a large number of trained riflemen who can be converted into infantrymen on a short notice; and second, it will place at the disposal of the war department a large number of privately owned automobiles to act in conjunction with the United States Army. The accomplishment of either of these objects, such military experts would do much toward establishing the United States on the basis of preparedness she must reach to be safe against all encroachment.

AUTOMOBILE VICTIM DIES AT PORTSMOUTH HOSPITAL

Frank L. Carlin, Injured by Car on Saturday Evening, Died on Sunday--Driver of Car Exonerated

Frank L. Carlin of Durgin's Lane, passed away at the Portsmouth Hospital shortly after 8.00 o'clock on Sunday from a fractured skull and other injuries, sustained by him on Saturday evening when he was struck by the car of Joseph Merrier on Main-street. Several witnesses, among them a son of Mr. Carlin, are understood to have exonerated Mr. Merrier of all blame attached to the accident. It is understood that County Solicitor Albert R. Hatch will hold an investigation of the accident but as the evidence points to the fact that Mr. Merrier was not at fault, no arrest is expected to follow.

In an interview with Mr. Merrier Sunday evening his story was substantially the same as that told by others who witnessed the accident. Mr. Merrier was returning to Portsmouth from Dover on Saturday evening in his car, he being alone at the time. As he reached the top of the hill beyond the Franklin school house he saw Mr. Carlin and his son, Everett, walking on the left side of the street. Mr. Carlin senior walking in the road and his son on the sidewalk. Merrier sounded his horn and Mr. Carlin started across the road to the right, moving in a diagonal direction, apparently paying no attention to the automobile. Merrier applied the brakes to the car but was unable to bring it to a complete stand although he had the wheels locked. With the car less than four feet from him Mr. Carlin stepped directly in front of it and was struck by the radiator. He was thrown to the ground by the blow, neither of the wheels touching him, and the car was stopped before its length had passed over the fallen man. Dr. F. S. Towle was called and he summoned Dr. H. L. Taylor and the injured man was removed to his own home. Everett Carlin was but a few feet behind his father in coming over the hill, stated at the time that he did not think Mr. Merrier to blame for the accident. It was the intention of the driver of the car to remove the injured man to the home of Mr. Shirley Davis, opposite whose house the accident occurred but the son advised taking him to his own home. He was placed in an auto. In an unconscious condition and an examination disclosed that he had a fractured skull and was apparently paralyzed. On Sunday noon he was removed to the hospital but he died at 9.15, never coming out of the state of coma into which he had sunk as soon as the accident happened.

Mr. Merrier, very much shaken up by the unfortunate occurrence, went to the police station and reported the accident to the authorities. Several officers, including the son and Mr. Davis, both having seen the accident, also reported their stories to the police, which were practically the same as that told by Mr. Merrier.

Mr. Carlin was a carpenter and is survived by his wife and four sons, F. Everett, Fred, Charles and Samuel, all following the same trade. Mr. Merrier is an electrician, attached to the Portsmouth navy yard.

MAINE'S NOISEY MOTOR BOATS

THEY MURDER SLEEP AND NO ONE ENFORCES LAW

Walter Emerson, in his breezy and altogether readable new book on Maine called "The Latchstring," has a few words to say about the things that prevent Maine people from making as much as they might out of their summer resort business. Well up in his list comes the unwhiffled motor boat exhaust.

"It was one of those calm, still echoey nights," he writes by way of introducing the subject, "when even the undertow had gone to sleep; one of those nights made for complete, unceasing rest; a night when you either sleep on the porch or open all the windows in order that the boundless silence of all outdoors may make more peaceful your peaceful slumbers."

"And we were awakened no less than a dozen times by those senseless, exasperating, spluttering motor boats, which exhaust their gasoline engines above the waterline and without mufflers. Some of the offenders, in an apparent effort to outstrip their fellow offenders in offense, run the exhaust pipe out at the side of the boat, and thus get the added effect of a sounding board."

"There are all pitches, from thundering basses to high, metallic tenors. In order to avoid what hypnotists call the monotony of stimulation, they skip at irregular intervals, and this makes it certain that you do not doze for any considerable time."

"Wa'n't No Hand to Make Trouble!" "And on an otherwise silent night, and all night, the whole vicious nerve-racking, sleep-killing fusillade came ashore with galling staccato and sledge-gun powers of destruction."

"I say criminal because there is a law of the state against this particular form of foolishness, but the constable or the sheriff, or whoever it may be that should enforce it, seems loath to act because probably it might make trouble for some of his neighbors, which at most could only be putting the exhaust under water or adding an inexpensive muffler to the equipment."

"Watch reminds me of a hired man of our village of years ago, in whose ancestry was a grandmother who saw a man kill his wife and put the body in a well. He used to brag about this good deed—not the killing, but his grandmother's seeing it. Nothing was ever done about the murder, and one day some one asked him what action she took."

"O. Lor," he replied, 'she jest didn't do nothing.' She wa'n't no hand to make trouble."

"But last night, after lobsterman and the hake fisherman had exhausted this word in two senses—everybody's patience, the milkman and the vegetable peddlers came pounding into the bay about 4.30 and the tired little colony, seeking rest and quiet from ceaseless metropolitan roar, gave up in despair."

Authorities Take No Action

Mr. Emerson—who summers at Squirrel Island, though one cannot say he writes of it in this instance—gives two concrete examples of the effect of the noisy motor-boat exhausts. He tells of a neighbor who, acting on his physician's advice, built a sleeping porch on his cottage large enough for his family of five. They came earlier in the spring than usual, on account of the new porch. One of the children, that had been ill in the winter, began to pick up wonderfully after sleeping on the porch.

But as the season advanced, and still nights came, the family was driven from the porch by the rapid-fusillades of the motor boats. The expensive porch was useless. The owner protested to the town authorities, without result.

Another case was that of a steam yacht owner who enjoyed visiting a certain small, deep harbor on the Maine Coast with his big vessel. He went there for years, and each summer fitted out there for a cruise to Nova Scotia, leaving never less than $1000 and sometimes $1500 in the village, for fuel and provisions.

Now he never visits that harbor. Asked why, he replied, "Your cursed motor boats without mufflers. Couldn't any of us sleep nights, or have any peace days."

The owner of this yacht took up the matter with the local authorities and officers of a local yacht club, but nothing happened.

ABSTRACT OF ADDRESS BEFORE THE NATIONAL COUNCIL OF EDUCATION

(By Robert M. Yerkes, Asst. Professor of Comparative Psychology and Psychologist to the Psychopathic Hospital, Boston, Mass.)

Up to a certain point both negative and positive eugenic procedures are fairly readily selected and as readily put into practice. We agree that many human characteristics and conditions of life should be worked against or eradicated. We agree also that certain other difficulties and environmental factors should be striven for. Despite endless discussion and arguments concerning the ideal individual the most worthy aim of goal of our interest and life's striving, we find it reasonably easy to select things in human life which are desirable, suitable, fit, as contrasted with others which are obviously undesirable and unsuitable.

From the point of view of the most enlightened and unselfish of men. Our educational ideal is the shaping or developing of the individual to maximal social value, but we too often think of educational process as beginning in childhood. In reality it begins before the birth of the individual. We should in all the interests of racial well-being, so modify our conception of the art of education as to escape this limitation, and we should come to think of the varied conditions of life from the moment of conception onward as more or less valuably educative. It is the ideal role of the educator to so control the conditions of life as to promote racial as well as individual welfare.

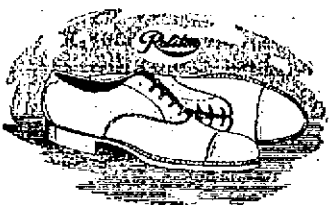

That we agree upon as the desirable type of individual of the human course of racial development may be attained only through educational effort and scientific research. So long as we attempt to sharply separate heredity from acquisition the problem of prenatal development from those of postnatal growth, we shall work against needless odds, for, as a fact, the life of the individual is one and indivisible. Heredity includes certain of its aspects and regulations, and those modifications or regulations which are the primary concern of education are merely contracted aspects of the same life. It is in my opinion, as much the duty of the educator to assure, through educational procedure, that individuals shall be well born as that they shall be well reared, or, in our more conventional language, properly educated.

To this end we must educate toward increasingly inclusive responsibility for racial welfare no less than for the conduct of the individual life. We must master and have mastered those facts of physical and biological, of medical and sociological, of physiological and behavioral science, upon which the wise control of life must depend. Thus far the study of the individual as a key to educational procedure has been too much neglected in favor of a study of the conditions of life. It is the educator's opportunity to develop an appreciation of the human organism as something which exists by acting and reacting in a marvelously complex and increasingly controllable environment.

Finally, one of the greatest of educational opportunities is that of promoting scientific inquiry by leading individuals, through information, to interest in adding to the sum of human knowledge. For research along scientific lines is quite as directly and largely dependent upon the contributions made by science. And so, as the most obvious important means to racial well-being appear education and research. Our efforts should center in the development of a scientific

RUSSELL-MUNSON

BRIDE NEW YORK WOMAN,
GROOM SON OF ONE OF BAY
STATE'S GOVERNORS

Trinity Episcopal Church, York Harbor, Me., was the scene of a brilliant wedding at 1.00 on Saturday afternoon when Miss Helen McKee Munson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hamilton Munson of New York, became the bride of Richard Manning Russell of Cambridge, a son of the late Gov. William E. Russell of Massachusetts.

The church was decorated with orange trees in full bloom, banked with syringas and white peonies. The ushers were Curtis B. and Alexander M. Munson of New York and George Aspinwall, William Barron and Franklin Trumbull of Boston.

The ceremony was performed by Bishop Thomas F. Davies of Springfield, bishop of Western Massachusetts. The bride wore a dress of white tulle over white satin with pearl trimmings and a veil with hood coronet effect. She was given in marriage by her father.

The maid of honor was Miss Carol Harriman of New York. She wore pale green chiffon.

The bridesmaids and matrons were Mrs. Gordon Archibald of New York, Mrs. Annas Mather of Cleveland, O., Mrs. Sumner McKnight of Minneapolis, and Miss Margaret Russell of Harrowgate, Eng., all of whom were dressed in pink chiffon over yellow chiffon. Following the ceremony a reception and dinner was held at the York Country Clubhouse, at which 260 guests were present.

After an extended western trip Mr. and Mrs. Russell will reside in Boston at the corner of Marlborough street and Massachusetts avenue.

Boston, the "cradle of liberty," and probably the birthplace of more isms than any other city in the country, is to try an experiment in dealing with criminals, brought before the municipal court. At the request of the chief justice of this court the city council has voted to expend $6,000 in providing for expert examination into the condition, physical and mental, of persons brought before the court, to the end that they may be dealt with according to their condition. The justice believes this will be a step forward in the cause of reform and that it will result in keeping many persons out of jail. Without doubt he is right in the latter view.

For more than a year a physician has been acting as probation officer, in which capacity he has upon his own responsibility been looking into the mental condition of persons committed to his charge. It is now proposed to make this a part of his official work, and as a first step toward the change his salary is to be raised from $2,000 a year to $3,000. He is to have an assistant at $1,500 a year, with an allowance of $1,000 for clerical expenses and $500 for incidentals and "laboratory" equipment.

Without condemning an experiment in advance of its results, there are many who will be unable to escape the conviction that this is carrying "psychology" a little too far. People familiar with the work of the courts and the class of people brought before them on criminal charges are confident that most of them are fully responsible for their acts, and there is danger that the introduction of "expert" examinations to determine the extent of their responsibility will do more harm than good. On a smaller scale it is the same thing as the plea of insanity as a defense in murder cases, and the introduction of such tactics into the lower courts will hardly be productive of good, to judge from results in capital cases.

The trouble in coddling criminals is not confined to the effect upon those in hand. The vicious elements are quick to seize upon any refuge from the consequences of their acts, and the hope of escape through "psychology" if caught will have anything but a reformative influence upon them. It will be proper to await the outcome of this Boston experiment before passing final judgment, though on its face it looks like carrying a good thing too far and approaching dangerously close to what is commonly known as "mollycoddleism."

Lieutenant Fay, who has been sentenced to eight years in the federal prison at Atlanta for plotting to blow up vessels carrying munitions to the allies, has asked President Wilson to have him deported to Germany, his native country. He says he deserted from the German army to further the cause of the Fatherland here, and that his punishment for desertion would be worse than the term of imprisonment, yet he would like to go home. It is probable, however, that he will be shielded from that awful German "punishment" by detention at Atlanta for the prescribed length of time.

Some cities are planning for elaborate fireworks on the Fourth, and this is all right so long as the fireworks are properly handled. The trouble comes from placing dangerous explosives in the hands of the young and inexperienced, a practice which, happily, is fast going into the discard.

The nomination of Charles E. Hughes by the Republicans was received with great enthusiasm at Brown University, of which he is a graduate, and the formation of a Brown Hughes club was begun at once. But there will be no brown hues in the colors of the club.

The Dry Chicago Federation, composed of fifty organizations interested in prohibition, has opened a campaign for riding Chicago of saloons in 1917. Can it be that these enthusiasts desire to remove the municipality from the list of eligible convention cities?

The suffrage leaders are somewhat disappointed by the work of the conventions, but are still full of fight. If they do not ultimately win it will not be because of a lack of persistence and grit.

A London professor says the war will not end this year, and present indications are that he is nearer right than those who have set October as the time for spiking the guns.

Two Italian cities were shaken up by an earthquake a few days ago, as if the country did not have enough troubles on its hands without any accompaniment of this sort.

"Spelling is easy" says a headline, a conclusion to which most editors are forced by their experience in handling manuscripts.

CAMP GROUND FLOODED

Sunday's Storm Raised Havoc With Militia Boys at Concord.

Camp Spaulding, Field Headquarters, First Infantry, Concord, July 3.—The boys of New Hampshire's First fought their first battle Sunday night. No casualties have been reported, but, as a result of the engagement, Camp Spaulding has more the appearance of a naval base than that of an infantry camp.

A terrible cloudburst, accompanied by a wind of hurricane proportions, severe lightning and a fusillade of hail stones as big as an old-fashioned Springfield rifle ball, swept over the grounds at 7 o'clock last evening. The bombardment lasted for fully 20 minutes.

The heavens opened their heaviest artillery against the khaki clad boys. Lightning flashed as from batteries in the sky. Several times it took effect. A telephone wire, running the length of the officers' street, was struck and put out of commission.

An orderly in Adjutant G. Perley Elliott's tent was knocked to the ground by the severity of the shock. Several other men were also hurled to the soaked ground. Captain Neil Lynam and Lieutenant Lee were among those who were affected by this well-aimed blast.

When the clouds of the conflict had blown away, Camp Spaulding presented a sorry spectacle. Seven inches of water flooded the grounds. Several canvas tents were down, as was that of the N. M. C. A. Kitchen ranges were under two inches of water, and every incinerator fire was out. Tents had been properly diked, but the flood had more than filled them.

Surprised by the suddenness of the attack, drenched to the skin, facing the prospect of judding the camp of streams of flowing water, in some places knee deep, the boys of the First were far from disheartened. The storm gave them a lot of work to do, but they did it with a song on their lips and merry jests passing from one street to the other.

One incident of last night's engagement gave them special cause for merriment, though the commissary department does not look upon it as much of a joke. This was the picture presented by three days' rations floating away. The rations had been distributed earlier in the day. The men ate soaked bread with a grin on their faces and many an impromptu parody singing from tent to tent.

Hundreds of women were on the ground when the storm broke, quickly by the guards were ordered to throw open the gates and summon every vehicle that was awaiting outside to the rescue of the guests.

Members of the field service hospital corps joined in this work, responding with their stretchers in which many women were carried from the grounds. The guard house was thrown open, and many were temporarily cared for there.

Last night but few of the guardsmen slept under canvas. The mess house roofed them and some were cared for in the guard house. It was a physical impossibility to camp for the night in their tents.

STATE GRANGE IN MANCHESTER

Executive Committee Decides on Place and Time, Dec. 12, 13, 14.

Concord, July 2.—The executive committee of the State Grange met yesterday in the department of agriculture room for the purpose of choosing a place of meeting for the next State Grange session. Invitations were received from Fred A. Rogers representing Lebanon and vicinity.

The charms of Concord were presented by Hon. Henry H. Metcalf and Secretary Thayer of the Concord Chamber of Commerce, both of whom assured by Lewis Poor, master, that they would do all in their power to make the stay of the Grangers pleasant and profitable.

Manchester attractions were laid before the committee by Secretary Griffiths from the Publicity association and chamber of commerce, and the support of the Union Pomona Grange and the Grangers of Manchester was assumed by Lewis Poor, Master of Union Pomona.

Later a note of the committee was taken which was unanimous in favor of the Union City.

The next State Grange meeting will be held in Manchester on December 12-13-14.

CURRENT OPINION

Cultivation of Character Not the Chief Business of Mankind.

One of the most interesting things to me is the unchanging character of human nature. There is a little bit of discouragement about it. You do not have to probe very deep in any generation, however remote, to find the characteristics and the needs and impulses and the aspirations which we ourselves feel, and it would sometimes seem as if nothing differed from generation to generation except the external setting of our lives.

Man is just the same in one generation as in another. He wears a different costume; he follows a different custom of life, it may be; he speaks this, that or the other language; he professes this, that or the other creed, but his heart is just the same that is to be found in any other generation and in any other men.

It is sometimes a very troubling thought that in the rush of our modern life and in the imperious demand made upon us by hourly duties we scarcely have time to think of our individual souls. I think it is fortunate we do not have time to think of our individual characters.

I have no patience with the principle that a man's chief business in life is to cultivate his character. That means that his chief business is to think about himself. That is the last person he ought ever to think about.

I believe that character is essentially a by-product. If you try to make it directly you make a prig, but if you do your duty to mankind and your God you make a character.—By President Woodrow Wilson.

Handsome Girl of 20 Passes Part of Examination for Marine Corps.

Attired in a masculine suit of the latest model, with a soft felt hat drawn down over her eyes, a pretty girl of 20 applied to Sergeant Nelson Huron of the Marine recruiting station at Grand Rapids on Saturday for enlistment, specifying San Francisco and a company in which she claimed she had a friend.

Sergeant Huron was completely deceived by her disguise, assured the applicant that it would be arranged, and the recruit went through the eye, ear, teeth and color tests, without any trouble and was smiling complacently over the thoughts of the trip West when the sergeant looked up from the blanks he was filling out and told her to step into the next room and disrobe for physical examination.

The smile left the face of the recruit, only to return in a flood of serenity and he rose to his feet with an embarrassed smile on the handsome recruit he had ever seen turned and fled hatless from the room and down the street.

SOFT COAL PRODUCTION OF U. S. GREATEST EVER

Washington, July 3.—Figures of the United States Geological Survey show that the output of bituminous coal in the United States during the past six months has been the greatest ever recorded in any half-year period.

Estimates by C. E. Lester, of the survey, based on returns from over 100 railroads originating coal and coke shipments, indicate that the production during this period was 251,000,000 tons, an increase of 35 per cent. over the first six months of 1915, and of 5 per cent. over the last six months of the same year, and greater by several million tons than the record established in the last half of 1913.

Compared with the first half of 1915 the exports from the Atlantic seaboard during the last six months have increased about 10 per cent, and the exports to Canada have nearly doubled. The movement of bituminous coal through the Sea Canal on the Great Lakes, show an increase of 80 per cent, and the coal used in cooking has increased nearly half.

Increased consumption by railroads and by the iron and steel and nearly all other industries has been a large factor in establishing this record. From April, 1915, to January of the present year the production of bituminous coal increased at a rapid rate, with but temporary slackening in November and December due to our shortage. The output in January, 1916, was more than 50 per cent greater than in April, 1915, and the production in February and March, 1916, was nearly as great.

There is every indication that the production during the coming six months will equal if not exceed the six months past and that the output in the calendar year 1916 will exceed 500,000,000 tons, establishing a new record for bituminous coal.

Every coal-producing State from Washington to the Atlantic coast has shared in this general increase. The production of Pennsylvania Anthracite increased about 3 per cent. over the corresponding period of 1915.

HOW MINES ARE LAID AND FIRED

One of the ways in which the belligerent nations lay mines in harbors and other waters is described in the July Popular Mechanics Magazine. On one deck of a vessel are several narrow tracks supporting the mines, each of which is mounted on wheels. Each mine is in turn rolled to the stern, and by means of special launching tracks is dropped into the sea without tilting. A mine of the character described is made up of three parts: A spherical floating chamber, containing the explosive, etc.; an anchor chamber which is connected with the former by a cable, and a weighted sounding line. The length of the latter is equal to the depth at which the mine is to float. When the end of the sounding line strikes bottom the lessening of its pull throws a pawl which prevents the drum in the anchor chamber from paying out more cable to the sphere. Consequently the latter is drawn under water to a depth equal to the length of the sounding line, as the anchor chamber settles to the bottom. A page illustration in the July Popular Mechanics Magazine depicts graphically this method of mine laying.

AMERICAN LUMBER TRADE WITH THE WEST AND NORTH COASTS OF SOUTH AMERICA

(From Department of Commerce) Washington, D. C., June 30.—That Americans can ship lumber to South America without quarrels and disputes with their Latin customers seems proven by the fact that Douglas fir from our Pacific Coast is sold in large quantities to Chile and Peru, with practically none of the friction over grades and measurements that characterizes our lumber trade with Argentina, Brazil, and Uruguay. "This satisfactory condition of affairs," says Special Agent Roger E. Simmons, in a report written for the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, "has resulted in a feeling of confidence in American products and cordiality toward American exporters that is of the greatest possible value to American trade as a whole."

The new report describes the markets for lumber in Chile, Peru, Ecuador, Colombia, Venezuela, Trinidad, and Guayana, Chile and Peru are the two big markets, although the lumber imported by those two countries is almost exclusively Douglas fir. Ecuador is unique in using practically no imported lumber, but would be a promising field if the tariff were low enough to permit American lumber to enter at a lower price. Practically all the lumber imported by Colombia and Venezuela comes from the United States, but the amounts are small—2,000,000 board feet annually for Colombia and 3,500,000 feet for Venezuela. The limited use of wood in both countries (the total consumption is only 13,000,000 feet in Colombia and 8,000,000 feet in Venezuela), in comparison with cement and other materials, points to the need of a lumber-advertising campaign, through which these markets might be greatly extended, says the report.

Among the topics treated in the report under the various countries are the domestic resources and industry, the lumber imports and their distribution; the species, dimensions, costs, prices, uses, etc., of imported lumber; business conditions; and suggestions for expanding American trade. Supplementary data are given concerning special wood products—furniture, matches, cros and ships, ties, poles, boxes and shooks, wood pulp, barrels flooring and ceiling, and sash, doors, and blinds. There are also lists of lumber importers and dealers, lumber yards, deposits, mills, wood-pulp, consumers, principal mining industries, nitrate shippers, and railroads of Chile, and sawmills, importers, and dealers of Peru, Ecuador, Colombia, Venezuela, and Trinidad. This report completes the record of the investigations conducted by the Bureau into the lumber trade of South America, a similar report for Argentina, Uruguay and Brazil having been published some months ago.

The present report is entitled "Lumber Markets of the West and North Coasts of South America." Special Agents Series No. 117. It comprises 119 pages and is sold at the nominal price of 25 cents by the Superintendent of Documents, Washington, and by all District Offices of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

SAVED FROM DROWNING

Mrs. Margaret Wentworth Faints in Surf at Hampton Beach.

Mrs. Margaret Wentworth of Haverhill, Mass., employed as a waitress in Dudley & White's at Hampton Beach had a narrow escape from being drowned late Saturday afternoon while in bathing. She waded beyond her depth and when a wave came last her footing and fainted from the fright.

She was going down for the third time when two men who had been in bathing and were reclining on the shore saw her and plunged into the surf. She was brought out of the water in a few minutes but a physician attended her nearly an hour before she regained consciousness. The names of the two men who rescued her could not be learned.

On Sunday Mrs. Wentworth was feeling none the worse for her thrilling experience, but she announced that she had discarded her bathing suit as she did not care to have another such close call.

CHURCH AND FARM BUILDINGS DESTROYED BY THE STORM

Lightening Causes Fires at York, Burning Buildings and Tying up Traffic on Car Lines

The Christian church at Clay Hill, York, in the Agamenticus district, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground during the severe electrical storm on Sunday evening. Services were being held at the time the church was struck and the congregation was forced to make a hasty exit into the deluge outside. It was reported that a set of farm buildings, situated between York Corner and and Rosemary Junction was burned, but the name of the owner or exact location could not be learned.

The storm first hit this section at Hampton, opening up with heavy rains shortly after 7:00 o'clock, and passing in a north easterly direction, becoming very severe as the center reached York.

Three of the cars of the Atlantic Shore Railroad were out of commission, the motors having been burned out after the cars were struck by lightning. Several of the circuits were thrown out of commission and it was reported, although not verified, that some of the wires had been broken. The road was able later to make the necessary repairs and the last car was run in just before midnight, almost a full hour late.

The storm, coming on Sunday night, recalls the many severe storms which visited this section on Sundays about a year ago. Portsmouth is believed to have escaped the heaviest part of the storm, although the electricity in the air seriously handicapped telephone communication for some time; it being impossible late in the evening to get any connections with Hampton or York. Up to midnight beyond heavy rains no damage was reported in the city proper.

BOAT HOUSE BURNED

Several Motorboats Destroyed
With Heavy Loss at Laconia.

Laconia, July 3.—During the severe electrical storm that swept the lake region late Sunday night, lightning struck the large D. M. Howe boat house on Ross Point, Lake Winnepesaukee, and the blaze resulting from the bolt practically destroyed the building. The loss will reach $2,000 on the building alone, which is covered by insurance.

The boat house shelters about 20 motor boats but at the time some were out, so that only about eight were burned. Among the losers were the following: L. M. Valler, $60; George Stafford, $100; Arthur Prescott, $75; Fred Johnson, $75; John Haley, $100.

The Clipper, owned by Frank Grant, valued at $400 and the best boat kept at the house was saved. The local fire department received deserved praise for its efficient work at the fire, handicapped as it was by the rain and storm that prevailed. Fifty gallons of gasoline stored in one of the buildings was removed before the flames reached them.

OBITUARY

Edward J. Gibbons

Edward J. Gibbons of this city, died on Sunday evening at his home on Daniel street, following a lingering illness. He was born in St. Mary's, Pa., the son of Andrew and Lena Gibbons, Sept. 11, 1853, and is survived by his wife, one son, six brothers and two sisters. He was a member of the Portsmouth Lodge of Elks and Division 2, A. O. U. H.

Ira Hunt

Ira Hunt, aged 75, died Sunday morning at his boarding place on Main street, Exeter. He was a Union veteran and a Mason. He was the father of Leonard B. Hunt, a business man, who died recently.

A STITCH IN TIME.

Portsmouth People Should Not Neglect Their Kidneys.

No kidney ailment is unimportant. Don't overlook the slightest backache or urinary irregularity. Nature may be warning you of approaching dropsy, gravel or Bright's disease. Kidney disease is seldom fatal if treated in time, but neglect may pave the way. Don't neglect a lame or aching back another day. Don't ignore dizzy spells, irregular or discolored urine, headaches, weariness or depression. If you feel you need kidney help begin using the reliable, time-tested remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills. For 50 years, Doan's have been found effective. Endorsed by Portsmouth people.

Mrs. A. B. Joy, 47 Myrtle Ave., Portsmouth, says: "My back gave me an awful lot of trouble and I had stiffness and dull pains just over my hips. Headaches were of frequent occurrence and pains sometimes shot from my shoulders into my head. My feet also swelled. At night my kidneys were very frequent in action and mornings I felt all tired out. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from Philbrick's Pharmacy, and they helped me right from the start and corrected this trouble. Since then, they have always given me great benefit whenever it has been necessary for me to use them."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Joy had. Foster-McIlburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

SLASHED THROAT WITH RAZOR

East Rochester Man, Becoming Despondent, Takes Own Life.

East Rochester, N. H., July 3.—Walter Bradley, aged 53, committed suicide Sunday morning in the parlor at the home of Anthony Cilley on Spring street, cutting his throat with a razor. Mr. Cilley made the discovery about 7:00 and two physicians and City Marshal Cook were summoned. City Physician Stokes was called, an inquest being deemed unnecessary, and the body was given over to an undertaker.

Bradley resided here a long period and until about a week ago was employed in the yard of the Cocheco Woolen Manufacturing Company. Last night his condition was such that he was guarded until about 2:30 this morning. In the absence of the members of the family he took his razor and killed himself.

Bradley was a native of Orange, N. H., the son of Frank and Sarah Westcott Bradley. He is survived by a son and two daughters.

RACES ON THE FOURTH.

Portsmouth Driving Club to Hold Interesting Card of Events.

On Tuesday, July 4, the Portsmouth Driving Club will hold a series of races at the Buckingham park in this city. All the details of the affair have been carefully worked out and all that remains to assure the sporting public an afternoon of rare pleasure is favorable weather. A large entry is already assured in the horse races, besides all the local entries there are several from out of town, among which are some from the Cox stable at Dover. There will be three classes in this event, the 2:16 for a purse of $250; the 2:21 for a purse of $250; and the 2:25 for a purse of $150.

In addition to the horse racing there will be a pony race and bicycle race, both of which will prove interesting. There will also be a novel feature in the automobile dash which will be open to owners of all makes of machines.

The horses will be called at 1:30 p. m., and be followed by the other events. The track is now in excellent condition and some fast, close races are looked for. Admission will be 25c. Children under 12 years free; teams and autos 25c.

HOLLIS IS HOME AND SAYS LITTLE

"Back for the Fourth" Is His Answer to Questioners.

Concord, July 2.—Senator Henry F. Hollis arrived here yesterday from Washington and will be here until next Thursday. The senator said he came on to spend the Fourth with his father, Major Abijah Hollis and is staying at the latter's home in West Concord.

He said he had nothing to say about politics or anything else for publication, but Democrats here are expectant that the senator will be less restrained when he gets down to a discussion of the coming campaign.

The meeting of the Democratic state executive committee at the state headquarters here on Wednesday night was called by Chairman George E. Farrand, chiefly because the senator was to be here at this time, and it was desired to learn in a more or less formal manner just what is to happen this fall.

A daily news letter from home and more is what The Herald will be to you on your vacation.

Suppose this was Your Business!

If the Government had asked you to invest your money in a plant to supply Government needs; and after the plant was built, and had become useful for no other purpose, the Government built a plant of its own, making your plant useless and your investment valueless—would that seem fair?

That is precisely what Congress is planning for the Government to do with reference to our investment of $7,000,000 in an armor plant.

Reporting to Congress, Hon. H. A. Herbert, then Secretary of the Navy, said December 31, 1896:

"The two armor contractors, the Bethlehem Iron Company and the Carnegie Steel Company, both entered upon the business at the request of the Navy Department."

Is it wise—is it fair—for the Government to destroy a private industry brought into existence to serve the Government, unless for reasons of compelling force? To show that no such reasons exist, we make this offer to the United States Government:

The Bethlehem Steel Company will manufacture armor plate for the Government of the United States at actual cost of operation plus such charges for overhead expenses, interest, and depreciation as the Federal Trade Commission may fix. We will do this for such period as the Government may designate.

Isn't that fair? The question is now before the United States Senate.

JEWETT NAMED PRESIDENT OF STATE BAR ASSOCIATION

Stephen S. Jewett of Laconia, was elected president of the New Hampshire Bar Association at the annual meeting held on Saturday afternoon at the Hotel Wentworth, New Castle, the banquet in the evening following the business meeting being attended by more than 100 members of the association. The members were met in Portsmouth by a committee in the morning and were taken to the home of Hon. Calvin Page, where they were entertained previously to their going to the Wentworth at noon.

At the afternoon session Chief Justice Andrew R. Savage of the Maine Supreme Court was the principal speaker, taking for his theme "The Evolution of Jurisprudence." Chief Justice Robert C. Pike of the New Hampshire bench read a very interesting paper, "Personal Recollections of Chief Justice Doe."

The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: Stephen S. Jewett of Laconia, president; George S. Morris of Lancaster, vice president; Arthur H. Chase of Concord, secretary; William E. Marvin of Portsmouth, treasurer.

meath, Dwight Hall of Dover, W. D. Hill of Conway, Charles R. Hubbard of Laconia, George W. Stone of Andover, Jeremiah J. Doyle of Nashua, Olyffe E. Cain of Keene, L. G. Colby of Plymouth, Edward J. Cummings of Woodsville and D. E. Mays of Gorham, executive committee.

In the evening the annual banquet was held, Thomas Lacey of Nashua officiating as toastmaster. One of the delightful features of the evening was the bright and snappy musical program rendered by Carl Behr and his orchestra. Mr. Behr having arranged to have his own American flag displayed at the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, Judge Henry Shute of Exeter assisting in the flag raising in the hall where the banquet was held.

Three rousing cheers and a vote of thanks were given Mr. Behr and his orchestra for the great interest displayed by them in making the evening a big success. Mr. Behr was much pleased at the appreciation shown for the orchestra and he thanked the members of the association for their kind acknowledgment of the efforts of his musicians.

BLONDES WARNED TO AVOID SUN

Blondes are warned that they are more susceptible to the stimulating effects of sunlight than brunettes and therefore should be more careful to avoid prolonged exposure to the sun's rays during the summer. In an announcement made in the monthly bulletin of the Boston Health Department issued Saturday.

And Health Commissioner Francis X. Mahoney is a bachelor. He may not have written the article but as head of the department he is responsible for it.

The advice to both blondes and brunettes is contained in an article entitled "Summer Hygiene and Exposure to the Sun" and it also includes many other helpful suggestions for people to follow during the hot weather. It says:

Summer Hygiene

"The discomfort of the extreme heat in summer is due to the inability of the body to eliminate the heat that is produced, and a consequent increase above the normal of body temperature. This effect is increased by high humidity.

"The hygiene for summer therefore, should aim to allow free elimination of moisture from the skin (perspiration), and to diminish the production of bodily heat.

For these purposes, frequent baths are indicated, loose, light, porous clothing should be worn, allowing air to circulate freely; heat-producing substances in the diet should be avoided, and heavy muscular work in the hottest period of the day should be limited as much as possible.

"The diet for summer should be well balanced. For one accustomed to a heavy meat diet the proportion of meat should be diminished, but for those who are doing muscular work by taking physical exercise there should be a good percentage of protein foods; the proportion of fats should also be diminished.

"Vegetables, both cooked and in salad form, fruit properly ripened, eggs and milk or the fermented milks form a valuable part of the summer diet.

"For those leaving home for the summer vacation the same general rules hold good. In choosing the summer home care should be given to general sanitation, especially proper sewage disposal, pure milk and water supply and the protection of the house from flies and mosquitoes.

"Those who are accustomed to a sedentary life should not attempt too violent or too much physical exercise at first, but should begin with the milder forms of exercise and increase gradually.

Effect of the Sun

"The exact effect of the sun's rays is not well understood, of course the heat is increased by these rays, and in hot days prolonged exposure should be avoided for this reason.

"Several authorities believe that the chief effect of the sun's rays is due to the actinic rays, and that this action is first stimulating and then overstimulating and exhausting, so that for this reason also prolonged exposure to sunlight should be avoided, even if the heat is not extreme.

"It is claimed that the stimulating effects of sunlight are more marked with blonds than with brunettes, on account of the protective power of skin pigmentation.

"Sunburn is also due to actinic rays and with some persons may be severe enough to cause serious pain. Much depends on individual idiosyncrasy and no general rule can be stated, except that any exposure should be avoided that causes symptoms of discomfort and beginning exhaustion.

"For the normally healthy person, sunbathing is a tonic and a healthful exercise, if taken in moderation. Bathing when overheated or exhausted should be avoided; the best time to bathe is in the morning an hour or more after the morning meal.

"The bath should not be too prolonged; from 15 to 20 minutes is the general rule, not over 30, and should be followed by a good reaction with a sense of warmth and stimulation.

"Exposure to the outer air in wet bathing garments is to be avoided when the air is cool on account of the danger of chill. If the air is warm a short exposure to the sun is not harmful.

Care Needed in Bathing

"Prolonged exposure to the sun in the bathing suit is to be avoided, both on account of the danger of an excessive degree of sunburn and of the overstimulation by the actinic rays previously mentioned. The practice of repeated dips in water and exposures to the air and sun is generally condemned by hygienists.

"There are certain contra-indications to sea bathing, and a person not in good health should not attempt it without consulting a physician. Failure to react properly, and prolonged chilliness after a bath indicates either that the bath is continued too long, or is entirely unsuitable.

"Heat exhaustion or heat stroke is comparatively common among those who must perform heavy muscular la-

WOMEN ARE SUPREME IN THE BIG CIRCUS

Nellie, Beatrice, and Gretchen Silborne.

Women has come into her own with the circus. She rules supreme under the great white canvas pavilions of the Barnum and Bailey Greatest Show on Earth, whose magic kingdom will establish itself in Portsmouth, Wednesday, July 5th, for two performances and street parade.

"The Greatest Show on Earth" some one has paraphrased it.

In almost every varied number, low and aloft, on the Barnum & Bailey program, the gentler sex predominates. From the opening pageant depicting the glories of the Thousand and One Nights, through the exploits in the rings and upon the stages, down to the handeling hippodrome races, when conclude the performance, feminine charm predominates.

There are six hundred women in all with the Barnum and Bailey circus. They are of all ages, all nationalities, all varieties of endeavor.

The name of feminine gymnastic skill and daring is revealed in the mid air feats of the Sibon Sisters, stars in the army of acrobats.

Lupeta Perca is an acrobat whose skill is the despair of male imitators and bears the added distinction of being the prettiest girl in the big tented enterprise.

Victoria Davenport participates in the rings with her big brother, Orrin, and her added presence has made the number one of the most popular of the entire performance. Fred Derick, noted equestrian, saw the renowned cover his friend Davenport's net was accordingly suggested an alliance with Ella Bradna, a noted Swiss equestrienne.

Now the two share honors in one ring. Laura O'Meara yields equestrian supremacy to no man. Lady Alice who presents a trained animal act in which rats and cats figure is a handsome woman.

Alena Athos has demonstrated to more than the wonder-products of gas-tance and adroitness in training horses. Marie Elmer now risks life and limb in the rushing Roman standing races around the hippodrome course, and her during the hottest hours of the day.

"Direct exposure to the sun is not necessary to cause certain types of heat stroke. It is due to the production of more body heat than can be eliminated and the consequent interference with the metabolic processes of the body.

The danger is increased by excessive clothing and uncleanness, interfering with the elimination of heat, also by overexertion, overeating and by the use of alcohol."

Matchmaker Dow of the Bookings from A. C. is trying hard to get Joe Connelly of Boston to box Eddie Flynn at the next show. Almost every club in New England has tried to bring these boys together. There is a hitch somewhere and it appears to be on the part of Connelly. A good sized purse has been offered the boys. If they can be brought together many would put money on from Boston to see the best two boys in New England at 133 pounds in action. Mr. Dow made an effort to get Startz and Flynn for the next show, but as the Startz paper were after more than the club could pay the negotiations had to be called off. If the local club can get Connelly and Flynn for the next show Red Kelly of Charlestown who is under the same management as Connelly will be matched with Steve Travers for the semi final.

I'VE BEEN TOLD THAT

A large number of citizens of the town are complaining of the dirty conditions of Portsmouth streets on Sunday days. In the opinion of those who have taken the trouble to express an opinion on the subject, the idea of cleaning the streets early Saturday is one big error as they are naturally badly cluttered in the afternoon and evening and their condition on Sunday morning is a disgrace to any community. That was practically the statement of three persons who mentioned the matter yesterday. A look at the streets on any Sunday morning will show if these men are right or wrong.

There is but one solution to the problem, according to the men who have expressed their views. Pressed for some remedy each of them said that the streets should be cleaned in the night, as close to midnight as possible. The suggestion seems reasonable, but who is going to see this carried out is the problem which is getting the goat of any number of persons.

With the New Hampshire Weekly Publishers' Association holding its annual mid-summer outing at the Wentworth the last of the week, it would be safe to assume that the Wentworth is fast becoming one of the most popular places for conventions in the state. Once they come to this section they all want to try it again.

A large gallery of interested fans saw Francis Oulmet, the former world's open golf champion, in action against two of Portsmouth's finest, when Mr. Oulmet was the guest over the week end of C. W. Bass, state champion of New Hampshire.

Eighteen holes were played over the course of the Portsmouth Country Club Mr. Oulmet and John Sullivan of Boston, (one of the best in Massachusetts) playing against Mr. Bass and Jackson M. Washburn, president of the club and president of the N. H. Golf Association. The visitors defeated the local stars, winning the eighteen holes, 2 up.

Mr. Oulmet played the rounds with a score of 37 out and 35 in, a total of 72, better for the course, but not the record. Mr. Sullivan's score was 77, Mr. Bass 77 and Mr. Washburn's 81.

Current Comment.

Portsmouth

In its "Travellette" column the Manchester Union Saturday morning printed an interesting article on Old Strawbery Bank which follows:

An old New England sea town is Portsmouth with the tang of salt in the air and the fragrant wraiths of the old West Indies trade still hovering around the wharves—wraiths that smell of rich tar and spices and molasses and persist in spite of that sulky little roadster that is spitting bad language and blue smoke through its shaking exhaust pipe.

In Portsmouth it is easy to reconstruct the vanished past—almost as easily as everything that has been written about the old town shows. To the most unimaginative people the gambrel-roofed houses suggest gut-baits in knee breeches and ruffled wrists and demure damsels in swelling skirts. This is rather obvious imagining. More elusive, yet much more real and significant is the realization that the old bears to the new—the modern office building that seems to regard each other in mutual misunderstanding, the new houses sheltered behind the old, old elms.

The human mind, however, is so constituted that the past has a far stronger hold upon it than the present. That is doubtless why you see the visitors to Portsmouth strolling and peering along the water front where old men sit before old warehouses where the little waves lap around the old piles that are rotting to pieces under their century long carresses. There are chairs that Washington sat in too, and tales and memories of Paul Revere and of a dozen other old time notables, but somehow the men of the past who have left their stamp on Portsmouth clearest are the nameless and forgotten ones whose vessels plied the bay. The sea is a jealous mistress and when she lays her finger on a city the imprint of her ways remain so long as the old wharves stand.

Being a New England town Portsmouth of course has her literary celebrity. In this case it is Thomas Bailey Aldrich whose old home stands converted into a memorial museum. Everything in the house has been restored to the same condition in which Aldrich knew it and the visitor who takes the author's work for a guide book finds still another Portsmouth living again before his eyes—the staid and decorous old city that the kindly poet knew.

A GREAT TREASURE.

The Manchester Union Saturday morning had the following to say editorially concerning the gift of the historic Moffatt-Ladd house in this city to the N. H. Society of Colonial Dames:

"The Union extends felicitations to the New Hampshire Society of Colonial Dames on the splendid array of gifts which have come to it of late. A beautiful silk American flag in memory of former Governor Frank West Rollins, presented by his widow; a Colonial Dames flag of silk from Gordon Woodbury, in memory of his mother, Mrs. Freeman P. Woodbury, who was one of the first members of the society; a New Hampshire state flag from Mrs. Herman P. Straw; a sun dial, given by ex-Senator William B. Chandler, to be placed in the Colonial garden at the Mansion in Portsmouth, in memory of Mrs. Chandler and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Hale; and the manuscript of a complete bibliography of New Hampshire, presented by Mrs. Thomas A. Lawton, formerly of Portsmouth but now of Newport, Rhode Island—these are among the portable gifts of intrinsic sentimental and historic value of which the society has recently been made the grateful and appreciative recipient.

"One of the greatest sources of satisfaction to be derived from possessing such treasures as these and others which the society owns is to be found in the possession of a permanent place in which to house them properly; and this comes to the society as a gift in the form of a 20-year lease of the Colonial Dames mansion (the Moffatt-Ladd house) at Portsmouth, from William J. Ladd of Milton, Massachusetts, Mrs. Manning Emery of Cambridge, Mass., and Mrs. J. Langdon Ward of New York city. Surely a more appreciable gift than this could hardly be imagined; and when it is considered in conjunction with the other handsome donations which have come to the organization, the New Hampshire Society of Colonial Dames is doubly and trebly to be congratulated."

SUMMER HINTS ON BABIES

"Do" and "Don't" rules for the care of babies during the summer are suggested to mothers by the Boston Health Department in its monthly bulletin issued Saturday as follows:

"During the summer months more attention must be given to the care of the infant at home, since during the hot weather an enormous number of unnecessary and avoidable deaths occur.

"Parasitic diseases, convulsions and other disorders peculiar to the hot summer weather are the leading causes of deaths of infants during the hot summer months. Infants, babies and young children are done much injury by pernicious foods on account of the harmful effects of the heat upon the food, of course this is particularly true of cow's milk.

"At this time especially overeating and overfeeding by infants should be prevented. Breast milk is the best at all times. It is the safest, cheapest and best of all infant foods. There will be less trouble this summer if mothers take heed and feed their infants at the breast. If the mother is unable to nurse her baby she should consult her physician before feeding the baby on the bottle. Nursing and not weaning is the proper thing in hot weather.

"The amount of food should be diminished one-half and milk should be made up of half water that has been boiled. If cow's milk must be used, see that it is clean, pasteurized milk, that has been prepared according to your physician's directions.

"The baby should have plenty of fresh air, preferably the open air, and on the shady side of the street. Keep flies and mosquitoes away from it. If unable to get out into the street, the porch is the next best place. See that the baby does not become overheated.

"But very little clothing is needed on the baby during the hot weather. A cotton undershirt will serve as a covering. Have the arms and legs uncovered and free. Let the baby lie on a clean, firm surface and not on a pillow or a heap of clothes.

"Bath the baby every day, besides giving it a couple of sponge baths with cool water to which has been added baking soda. For drinking water, plenty of cool, boiled water is the best. Ice water should never be given the baby."

FOUND DEAD NEAR TRACKS

Manchester, N. H., July 2.—Railroad men employed in the local yard last night at 10 o'clock discovered the body of a young man beside the tracks with his head crushed and legs severed. Investigation resulted in the identification of the body as Florence Kulpinsky, 22, single, residing at 22 Laurel street.

No particulars are known as to the manner in which the young man met his death, save that he was run over by some one of the trains. The medical referee, Dr. Maurice Watson, took charge of the body.

GOD'S BLESSING BRINGS RICHES

Through Christ a Great Blessing Is Coming to World.

Blessings Future and Blessings Present—Blessings of Knowledge—Blessings of Health—Blessings of Heart and Mind—Special Blessings For the Church—Bride of Christ to Be Fabulously Rich—Blessing of Divine Favor and Fellowship Even Now.

New York City, July 2.—Pastor Russell spoke this evening at the New York City Temple, W. 63rd St., near Broadway. His discourse was based upon the wise man's words, "The blessing of the Lord maketh rich, and he addeth no sorrow with it."

Proverbs 10:22.

The blessing of the Lord, the Pastor declared, is here contrasted with the curse pronounced upon Father Adam in Eden. "That curse was death, not eternal torment. The blessing, therefore, will be the antithesis of death—life everlasting and a return to Edenic conditions for all who are willing and obedient. The willfully disobedient, however, will come under another death sentence, Scripturally called the Second Death, from which there will be no recovery. "Christ died no more."

The speaker believes that God has as good a purpose in connection with the creation of mankind as with that of the angels, and that the present great difference between the conditions of men and the holy angels is the difference between a condition of sin and one of righteousness. The angels who live in a state of holiness and happiness are those that kept their first estate. This same of the angels failed to do—the fallen angels—the demons. (Jude 6) Man in his present fallen condition is sick, mentally, morally and physically. Because of sin he has come under a Divine curse—not a devilish curse of eternal torment, but a Divine curse of death.—Genesis 3:17-19; Romans 8:23.

That a universal blessing is to come to all men is made very clear in Scripture. This blessing will come through Jesus Christ. As the curse was a world-wide sentence which reached to all of Adam's posterity, bringing all into condemnation, so it is the Divine purpose that a redemption shall come to all through Christ. Our Lord Jesus "by the grace of God tasted death for every man." Every member of Adam's race, whether living or dead, is to experience an individual opportunity for life eternal through Christ's death.—1 Cor. 15:21, 22; Heb. 2:14; 1 Tim. 2:3, 4; Acts 3:21, 23.

Few Seeing Eyes and Hearing Ears.

Some Christian people claim that now is the world's only opportunity. Citing the proclamation that whosoever believeth in Christ Jesus shall have everlasting life, they declare that this offer does not extend beyond the present existence, that responsibility to heed this offer rests upon all now. The Bible indicates, however, that not many now understand even the first principles of the great blessing which God has provided. The majority believe not, because Satan has blinded their minds through ignorance, superstition and priestcraft. Vast multitudes have died without having heard of Christ. Since intelligent faith in our Redeemer is absolutely essential to salvation, according to Scripture, how could these have opportunity for salvation if the present life ends all hope?—2 Corinthians 4:4; Acts 1:12; John 8:23, 25, 29; etc.

To His disciples our Lord intimated that few now understand God's arrangements. (Matthew 13:10-17.) His time to enlighten the world has not yet come. Only a few are now in proper condition to be profited by the Truth. Therefore the Lord sees that this knowledge is given to none except those in the right heart attitude and able to exercise faith. Upon others God's Message makes little impression. Weakness of heredity or handicaps of training or both blind them.

All having hearing ears and understanding hearts realize the blessing mentioned in our text. During the next Age the Lord's blessing will come upon the world, but will operate quite differently. Christ will take control of all the world, will bind Satan that he deceive the nations no more, and will grant the blessing of life everlasting to all who will receive God's gracious offer into good and honest hearts. These approaching Times of Refreshment St. Peter calls Times of Restoration. (Acts 3:19-21.) Adam and all his race will be offered regeneration from sickness, sorrow, death, from mental, moral and physical disabilities—back to the image of God which Adam lost by disobedience in Eden, but which Jesus redeemed for all mankind at Calvary.

But those who are God's children are rich now, rich in the sense of sin forgiven, in the realization that God no longer condemns them, that they are His children. John's words, with Christ in all His wonderful glory, God's blessing gives them the spirit of a sound mind. So they go on their way rejoicing in the hope of future glory.—1 Corinthians 2:9.
